I have a DG&S 870 also in my collection that i believe was previously identified as a 'Rebberg' movement?. I'll have to disassemble it to take a photo of the top plate;

A close-up view of the intricate mechanical components of an antique pocket watch. The movement is highly detailed, featuring various gears, jewels, and a balance wheel. The case is ornately decorated with gold-plated scrollwork and engravings. The text "WATCH SPECIALTIES CO." and "15 JEWELS 3 ADJUTS" is visible on the dial.
