This watch deserved a nice pigskin strap. With one end longer than the other one to get the clasp on the normal spot on your wrist. Something like this (picture from Cary?):

I gave up finding one. But I did pick up a Golfers Pal. This had a continuous strap made from pigskin.

I don't have professional leather tools... but alternatives did the job too.

The steps I took: cut the strap in half, make the end thinner, make is smaller (for the lugs).

Glue it (and wait...), make holes, sew it.

Happy with the end result!
